

Adenauer Takes Issue With DeGaulle Over ECM

BONN, Germany (AP)—In a plea for Western unity, German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer took issue Wednesday with President Charles de Gaulle of France by urging Britain's admission into the Common Market and strengthening of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization under U.S. leadership.

The West German leader avoided criticizing the French president in a policy statement to the Bundestag (parliament). But Adenauer's words carried the ring of a stern reminder to his old French friend.

"Europe knows that it cannot defend itself without the support of the United States," he said. "I therefore, declare with all emphasis that to us there can never be anything but close cooperation between free Europe and the United States."

De Gaulle's policy has been widely viewed as an attempt to squeeze the United States out of the powerful position it holds both economically and militarily in Europe.

Adenauer framed his remarks in an attempt to still opposition at home to signing a new treaty of cooperation with France after De Gaulle blackballed Britain from the Common Market.

Unanimous votes are required on such issues, and the Dutch could veto the treaty proposals, just as France vetoed Britain's entry.

Over Diefenbaker's Fall Silent Policy Adopted By Washington Officials

WASHINGTON (AP)—Official Washington adopted a policy of discreet silence Wednesday on the fall of John G. Diefenbaker as prime minister of Canada. There were no cries of approval but neither were there any loud laments.

The fact is that relations between Canada and the United States have been tense much of the time since Diefenbaker became prime minister. U.S. leaders obviously were not upset by his political misfortune.

What does seem to have distressed President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk is that the United States played such a role in bringing about collapse of Diefenbaker's Conservative party regime on a no-confidence vote in Parliament Tuesday night.

Administration authorities here insist the U.S. action was not designed as a political bombshell—at least that much of a bombshell.

Political Dynamic

Kennedy and Rusk, according to administration reports, were not directly involved in the issuance a week ago of the State Department statement which precipitated the crisis. Kennedy is said to have been angry at subordinates for not realizing the political dynamite involved.

In a time of turmoil in a neighboring country the United States normally would keep its mouth shut. The present situation is considered here to be especially delicate.

Obviously U.S. leaders would not particularly like to see a restoration of the Diefenbaker defense policies by a new government. But the change of "intrusion" Diefenbaker has already made against Washington are nothing to the protests that would be made if Canadians thought Kennedy was trying to influence the upcoming April 8 election.

There will be heavy strains on U.S.-Canadian relations at best because the defense policy quarrel with Diefenbaker is so deeply involved in the present situation.

Scranton Backs School Merger

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Scranton emphatically backed mandatory school district reorganization Wednesday, but under the terms of new legislation his administration will introduce next week.

In the meantime, he told his weekly news conference, he has asked the state Council of Education to hold up an implementation of the controversial 1961 reorganization law that would merge the state's 2,100 districts into some 300 larger units.

"I want it to be mandatory," the governor told newsmen when asked if his substitute plan for the 1961 act would require reorganization.

Scranton deferred pinpointing provisions of the new bill until he sends his message on education to the legislature next week.

Aerial Pictures Show Cuban Bases Inactive, Torn Down

17,000 Soviet Troops Are Left In Cuban Installations

WASHINGTON (AP)—An intelligence aide to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Wednesday night that as late as last Monday U.S. aerial reconnaissance showed that former Russian missile bases in Cuba still were inactive, dismantled and showing no military activity.

John Hughes, a special aide in the Defense Intelligence Agency, told this to a nationwide radio and television audience after McNamara declared he believes "beyond reasonable doubt" that all offensive weapons systems have been removed from Cuba and have not been reintroduced.

Hughes said an intensive reconnaissance effort still is directed at Soviet ships heading for Cuba. One ship was photographed nine times while it was being unloaded, he said.

Intelligence experts measured the boxes and crates taken off ships. None of them could have contained offensive weapons, he said.

The port of Mariel is carefully and continuously watched, he said. Mariel was the port to which the Soviets shipped most of their offensive weapons, and through which they pulled out the bulk of the weapons, he added.

Hughes said photos taken a week ago Monday at the San Cristobal medium-range missile site showed that all equipment had been removed and "no attempt had been made by anyone to reactivate" these bases.

Showing photographs to illustrate his report, Hughes spoke for an hour and 24 minutes recounting the story of U.S. reconnaissance of the Soviet activities in Cuba. Following Hughes in summing up, McNamara said about 5,000 Russians have left Cuba, leaving about 17,000 behind. Of these, he said, about 5,000 are in troop garrisons in four key places.

Reconnaissance Flights

McNamara said the United States now maintains "continuous and effective" high altitude reconnaissance flights at least once a week.

He said it provides full coverage of the entire 700-mile-long island.

Further, McNamara said, low-level reconnaissance planes are kept on 24-hour alert, if they should be needed to check more closely on any suspicious signs.

It was the defense secretary's second turn at the microphone.

McNamara led off at a special, hurriedly arranged news conference that was a part of an administration effort to clear the air on the current situation in Cuba.

McNamara noted questions have been raised about offensive weapons in Cuba, and stated his belief that such weapons have been removed.

He said that since July 1 over 400 reconnaissance flights have been flown over Cuba by U.S. aircraft. He said this formed the basis for national decisions taken by the country in October, the military decisions to support those decisions, and the evidence to document the evidence.

The flights recorded the removal of the weapons and continue to show such weapons have not been reintroduced, he said.

McNamara then introduced John Hughes, an assistant, to give a photographic explanation to the reporters.

Hughes, special assistant to the director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, said the Soviet offensive buildup in Cuba led to "one of the most intensive military reconnaissance efforts" ever directed against a single area.

He said the U.S. reconnaissance effort has continued up to the present time.

Storage Areas

The Soviets were building nuclear weapons storage areas at each of their missile sites, Hughes said.

"We will illustrate how the United States was able to monitor the dismantling of Soviet offensive bases" and check on removal of the weapons, Hughes said.

He promised a review of surface to air missiles sent to Cuba by Russia, other missile facilities and MIG fighters.

Hughes said there were also certain problems of unique military interest to which he invited particular attention.

He listed among these the remarkable speed with which the Soviets were able to bring and install military equipment in Cuba, the high degree of camouflage used in efforts to hide these installations, and the U.S. capability nevertheless to detect the building in detail.

Hughes said that Soviet launching facilities for Soviet intermediate range ballistic missiles (IRBMs) were still under construction when Soviet Premier Khrushchev agreed to dismantle them.

Soviet jet bombers also moved were in operational status, he said, and only seven reached a flyable state. Hughes said there is little doubt, however, that the Soviet Union in September embarked upon a major military construction program, to achieve clandestinely a full operational capability by early December, to present the United States with an accomplished fact.

This was never achieved, he said, because of the evidence provided by the photographs.

Four Areas

Hughes said photographs showed the Soviets chose four areas of Cuba for offensive missile sites.

Using a large map of the island, Hughes pointed to the missile sites set up, most of them in the Havana area.

There were nine Soviet offensive missile sites in Cuba, he said. Six were for medium range ballistic missiles (MRBMs), and three were for IRBMs, each including four launch positions.

At Polls In April

Canadian Voters To Settle Issue

OTTAWA (AP)—Canadian voters will get a chance to settle at the polls April 8 the issues that led to the overthrow of Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker's government.

High among those issues is a controversy over Canada's still unhonored commitments to arm its military forces with U.S. nuclear warheads at home and in North Atlantic Treaty Organization service abroad.

Two-Month Campaign

Diefenbaker, 67, dissolved Canada's 25th Parliament on Wednesday and announced the election date. The two-month election campaign is customary.

The prime minister acted after an emotion-packed caucus of his badly shaken Conservative party closed ranks behind him and averted, for the time being at least, a split over party leadership.

Diefenbaker demanded and got individual loyalty pledges from each of his Cabinet ministers remaining after the resignation of Defense Minister Douglas Harkness. Some were reported to have wept as they voiced their support. The prime minister later declared the caucus had given him "the most overwhelming support that I have ever received in all my years of politics."

Widespread Rumblings

Widespread rumblings remained around the country, however, with some Conservatives expressing misgivings over the outcome of the election if Diefenbaker continues to head the party.

The Toronto Globe and Mail, powerful voice for the Conservatives, demanded that Diefenbaker step down.

While the U.S.-Canadian dispute over arms has attracted most attention, several other matters figured in the downfall of the government and will be prominent in the campaign. These include Canada's economic health and what critics consider a slowdown in development. Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson charges the Conservatives with a do-nothing policy; Diefenbaker accuses the Liberals of obstructionism.

Trade Minister George Hees discounted widely held views that the campaign might develop into a slugfought over American influence. He said the Conservatives will not conduct an anti-American campaign.

Pearson, who led the drive for the no-confidence vote that ousted the government 142-111 discussed strategy with Liberal members of Parliament.

House Revamps Districts

HARRISBURG (AP)—The membership of the State House of Representatives would be reduced by one seat under a tentative reapportionment plan worked out by the chairman of the House Committee on Elections and Apportionment.

The chairman, Rep. LeRoy A. Weidner, R-Berks, disclosed Wednesday that he has narrowed the problems of reapportionment to 25 of the state's 67 counties.

Of these 25, he listed only 15 in the category of "must be redistributed."

Among the 15 counties listed by Weidner as "must be redistributed," these would change in their number of representatives: Beaver, 3 to 4; Bucks, 3 to 5; Chester, 3 to 4; Fayette, 4 to 5; Lackawanna, 5 to 4; Schuylkill, 4 to 3; Delaware, 7 to 8; Luzerne, 7 to 6; Philadelphia, 39 to 35; Westmoreland, 5 to 6; and Montgomery, 6 to 9.

Also Included

Also included in this group are Butler, Cumberland, Dauphin, Allegheny. The latter four would retain the number of representatives, but districts would be shifted within the counties.

The other 10 are Berks, Cambria, Erie, Franklin, Lancaster, Lawrence, Lycoming, Northampton, Northumberland and York.

In most cases, the legislature could leave the district lines untouched, Weidner said, but that decision would have to await further discussion.

The other 42 counties, include 33 which now have only one representative and will remain unchanged.

Four two-member counties — Armstrong, Clearfield, Crawford, Somerset—are to drop one member each.

Weidner said his tentative plan would leave the present multi-district counties of Lebanon, Lehigh, Mercer and Washington unchanged.

Finally, he proposed that one seat be taken out of the city of Altoona to reduce Blair County's three seats to two, under the population changes shown in the 1960 census. The city now has two representatives, chosen on a city-wide basis.

Kennedy Acts On Cuban Shipping

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy forbade Wednesday the shipment of U.S. government-financed goods aboard any foreign vessel which has been to Cuba since Jan. 1.

But if the offending shipowner promises not to sail his company's vessels to Cuba again, he will be allowed to share in the U.S. government trade.

Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger announced the long-awaited Kennedy order, which White House sources freely conceded falls far short of a tougher plan first proposed by the administration before last October's Cuban missile crisis.

These sources said the new order was limited because free world shipping to Cuba has already dropped off sharply because of U.S. diplomatic influence. Stiffer penalties can still be invoked later if needed, they said, but would only provoke undue friction with friendly maritime nations now.

The shipping order is part of the administration's campaign to isolate the Red regime of Fidel Castro and make it more costly for the Communist bloc to supply Cuba.

White House sources gave newsmen figures showing only 14 non-Communist bloc vessels went to Cuba in January compared with 32 last July, 65 in October, 39 in November, and 21 in December.

School Costs Rise

HARRISBURG (AP)—Increased spending and taxes to move education forward in Pennsylvania were recommended Wednesday by the Committee of One Hundred for Better Education.

A report of a year-long study, presented to Gov. Scranton, said the state's education bill will go up $50 million this year even under present programs.

Teachers Salaries

The committee of private citizens appointed by former Gov. David L. Lawrence recommended spending another $30 million on top of that to boost teachers' salaries and school district subsidies.

Other recommendations included establishment of a policy making state board of education, implementation of the school district reorganization law, development of public community colleges, establishment of a state student loan and scholarship program and a study of vocational and technical training program.

The committee did not make any recommendations for specific tax increases, but pointed to the levies proposed by its predecessor, the Governor's Committee on Education.

Possible Revenue Sources

Possible revenue sources suggested by the committee in 1961 included broadening of the present 4 per cent sales tax and new levies on intangible personal property, soft drinks, tobacco products other than cigars and underground gas storage.

"The program contained in this report is merely a beginning toward solution of the immense problems facing Pennsylvania in education," the committee said, adding:

"We urge all citizens, the governor and the 1963 legislature to act positively on these recommendations and begin to move education forward once again."

"The revenue to finance this additional cost will be difficult to find, but in our opinion must be found, nonetheless. It is our firm belief that, if necessary, increased tax measures to finance this program should be adopted."

As Proposed By JFK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two members of President Kennedy's Cabinet urged Congress Wednesday to enact his tax cut and revision program in one piece this year. There were hints of a veto if Congress, instead, goes far in slashing taxes without some revenue-recouping changes.

Tuesday Secretary Douglas Dillon and Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges took the administration's case to the House Ways and Means Committee which writes tax legislation.

They promptly ran into views already publicly expressed by many members of Congress, Democratic as well as Republican—that tax reduction is as much as Kennedy reasonably can hope for this year, and tax code revision must wait.

Kennedy's package proposal for a $10.3 billion tax reduction, to be achieved in three annual stages, involves total reductions of $13.6 billion, offset by $3.3 billion of revenue-increasing changes.

Filibuster Action Is Sidetracked By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—A solid, but meaningless 92-5 vote Wednesday against sidetracking proposals to put teeth into the filibuster-stopping rule propelled the Senate toward a showdown Thursday.

That test vote—after four weeks of debate that never quite acquired the label of filibuster—is expected to end the battle. Proponents of the rules change contend they lack the strength to fend off defeat.

Thursday's vote will be on a motion to invoke cloture, the same debate-limiting rule the senators have been arguing about. To pass, it will require a two-thirds majority of senators voting, a count that has rarely been mustered when the tactic has been used in the past.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader, has offered the motion, as he did Wednesday's defeated motion, as part of his effort to bring the issue to a head.

The majority leader says he is weary of the debate that has kept the Senate from organizing itself and getting busy on legislation with Congress in session nearly a month.

If fewer than 60 senators vote to limit debate—well below the 67 needed for a two-thirds majority—he will try to close the fight by moving to adjourn the Senate, Mansfield said. Adjournment—contrasted to the overnight recesses of the past four weeks—would wipe out a motion by Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., to take up his proposal to change the rule so that three-fifths—instead of two-thirds—of the senators voting could limit debate.

Bore Down Hard

Dillon bore down hard on what he called the misunderstanding of provisions affecting middle and upper income taxpayers. While individuals in unusual circumstances might find themselves paying more taxes, he said, 99 per cent of all taxpayers would benefit under the President's plan and middle income group, on the average, would be 20 per cent better off.

Byrnes said, however, he was not convinced. He said some of the reforms seemed to him to hit at people who had moderate incomes, bought homes and stocks, paid substantial local taxes and contributed to churches and charities.

Awards Shortway Contract

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Highways Department awarded a $3,199,033 contract Wednesday for construction of a 5.66 mile section of the Keystone Shortway in Carbon and Monroe counties.

The award was made to the No. 1 Contracting Co. of Delaware with headquarters in West Pittston.

The contract marks the ninth county to start work on the Shortway.

The new contract covers that part of the road beginning east of the northeast extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike to a point east of the Carbon-Monroe County line. It extends from Tobyhanna Twp., Monroe County, into Kildare Twp., Carbon County. Also included will be a three-span bridge over Tusunkhannock Creek.

Hard Luck Colonel

Everyone should be happy about what happened at Lockheed, except Col. James H. Voyles, Jr. He'll be put on the grill because he wrote a letter which allegedly violated the Government's "hands off" policy in labor-management matters.

The prolonged dispute between Lockheed Aircraft Co. and the International Association of Machinists ended with a contract, and the company was able to stave off the union demand for a contract that would have forced all its employees to join the union or be fired.

In January, when Lockheed was having a hard time resisting this demand, Col. Voyles wrote a letter to Courtland S. Gross, Lockheed chairman, commending him for his stand against delivering employees into the hands of a union regardless of their personal opinions or wishes.

The Machinists got a copy of it, somehow and spread it far and wide. So the Colonel was on the pan. The Government piously objected that all its people were not supposed to take sides. This was a singularly humorless stand to take, because the Government already had taken sides with a vengeance.

It had set up a "special presidential board" to make recommendation on a settlement. The board had recommended that the union have its way, which surprised nobody because the chairman of that board already was on record as in favor of compulsory unionism before he was chosen.

Then the President backed up the board's recommendations, and the Defense Department let it be known that if Lockheed were struck its government contracts probably would be taken away.

Mr. Gross and Lockheed, perhaps encouraged by wide public support and perhaps also by the Colonel's letter, stood firm against the board, the President and the threat of lost business. The union members voted overwhelmingly to accept a new contract without compulsory unionism.

So there was a happy ending for everyone but Colonel Voyles, who must face the hypocritical charge that he took sides, which the Government should never, never do.

Question Answers Itself

Several years ago it was proposed that the federal government control the "end-use" of fuels. That rather formidable phrase simply means that government would decide what fuels could be used for what purpose. The impetus came from fuel producers who, in the existing competitive economy, had been losing markets to other fuels, notably oil.

No legislative action has so far been taken. But the drive for end-use control continues. So some things said by a special group of energy experts appointed by the 87th Congress, which spent almost a year of research on the matter, deserve repeating.

It said: "Competition among fuels has been a factor in making America an energy-intensive economy. . . . Such competition provides the product — fuels in this case — at the least cost to the public." End-use regulation, obviously, would end such competition.

The group also dealt with the argument that the government should act to prevent loss of jobs and investment resulting from competition by limiting that competition.

It said: "The nation could have evolved a policy to maintain wagon transport, the ice industry, kerosene lamps, the wood fireplace, or the cottage weaver. In these and other examples constructive displacement caused a dislocation of employees and a dissipation of investment. Against this can be measured the benefits of today's modern mass transportation, modern refrigeration, dependable and healthful illumination, central heating, and miracle fabrics and plastics."

The point is plain: Can we, by government edit, afford to stop progress, and can we afford to have a government agency, not the consumer, decide what we can and cannot buy and use? This, clearly is one of those questions that answers itself.

DeGaulle's Moscow Pitch

Professional students of de Gaulle and de Gaulism (and who these days is not?) are busy convincing themselves that the French leader, once he has launched the "Anglo-Saxons" from the councils of Europe, will seek a master accommodation with Khrushchev.

This makes for a piquant commentary on the fact that, only recently, when President John F. Kennedy was busy announcing the removal of Jupiter missile bases from Italy and Turkey, the phone lines to this columnist's home were being scorched with fears that it was the American President who was about to be making a begging trip to the Kremlin.

If both acts of fear are right, we will soon be seeing a strange competition — and some mean-spirited caricature will certainly exploit the "Fancy meeting you here" theme as cartoon figures representing de Gaulle and Kennedy sit facing each other in the anteroom to Khrushchev's inner sanctum.

But if there is to be a competition between the French and American Presidents for an agreement with Khrushchev, it must, in the nature of things, be a struggle to get really significant Soviet concessions. This, in itself, is a pretty good reason for feeling sure that neither de Gaulle nor Kennedy would ever dare offer Khrushchev the key to West Berlin.

There is, of course, no reason for anti-Communists to trust de Gaulle. The French leader, though he could hardly be called a racist (if he were, he would not harbor animosity toward his Caucasian cousins, the "Anglo-Saxons"), has a mystical conception of "Europe" as something that extends from the English Channel to the Ural. This puts European Russia inside the Gaullist pale.

The purely continental conception of Christendom, which has no historical warrant, excludes not only the British Isles (Christian since the Dark Ages) but all the overseas "children" of Europe in North and Latin America, South Africa and the Antipodes. It may explain, incidentally, how de Gaulle could so cavalierly have sacrificed the French extension of Christendom that had rooted itself on the southern shores of the Mediterranean in Moslem Algeria.

Well, with a basic conception of "Europe" that excludes the Anglo-Saxons and incorporates at least the western half of Russia, de Gaulle would certainly be willing to entertain a revival of the old pre-1914 Franco-Russian entente. He once headed a "national" French government that included Maurice Thorez, the French Communist boss, in a coalition cabinet, which would argue a singular willingness to accommodate Marxists.

But the "Channel to the Urals" notion of Europe has no internal cohesion or substance. To make it a reality, de Gaulle would have to count on a compliant Germany. And what makes anyone think that such a Germany can be had?

For myself, I would rather guess that the Germans, having tasted the good red meat of economic freedom, have no desire to be cooped up in a "Gaullist Europe" that would tend to limit West German markets. German economics professors who were instrumental in 1948 and afterward in turning Adenauer to the idea that the way to abundance and prosperity was to free the market, are still high in the councils of the Bonn government.

These professors were among the earliest to enroll in the international Mt. Pelerin Society of liberal economists. They believe in free trade, or at least in freer trade, on a scale that is far bigger than that provided by the "Inner Six" nations of western Europe, and assuredly they will continue to fight for it. And one of their number, Dr. Ludwig Erhard, may yet succeed Adenauer as head of the German government.

To satisfy Khrushchev, de Gaulle would have to give him something at West German expense. He would have to barter away West German rights in Berlin, or support a "united" Germany that would give the East German Communists a role in a new central government, or guarantee a "neutralized" central Europe that would be willing to put its trust in a still problematical French atomic defense umbrella. Can you see the West Germans going along with any of this? I can't.

The Pennsylvania Story

2-Fold Duty For Journals

Harrisburg — Pennsylvania's legislative journals routinely are thick and heavy — filled with the profuse and sometimes wiled explanations of lawmakers defending their stand on various legislative actions that flower during a session of the Legislature.

Voters throughout the counties at election time hear much from these journals — the day-to-day (official) recordings of the activities of lawmakers.

These legislative transcripts are viewed as almost priceless by most lawmakers seeking return to their legislative seats. Actually the record contained in the journals works both ways.

For example, in 1955 when Governor Leader proposed an income tax during the early months of the session that year, it was a check-back in the journal of the 1951 session that revealed — egad — he had voted against an income tax that year as a member of the Senate.

Journals are expensive affairs to print and publish. Yet there are few if any lawmakers who would do away with these printed records.

From a practical standpoint they must be retained however for nothing else than to maintain an official record of legislative proceedings. They could be simplified and set up at considerably less cost.

A 72-year-old man of the area, missing since January 6, was found in the Pocono Creek. He had drowned.

More Than 20

How many remember when the Stroudsburg Cynemary Company's team of horses ran away while the milkman was delivering milk?

Journals are loaded with statements and expressions of members of each house.

Many of these are extensive. Many never see the light of day on the floor of either the House or Senate.

Such statements are "entered in the record" by the simple expedient of the individual member rising to his feet to request permission to have the silent utterance entered into the big bound volumes.

The oftentimes massive statement then merely goes to the clerk and when the journal for the week is published — the statement for posterity will be found therein.

The odd part about these entries in the official journal is that in defense of a particular vote, a lawmaker may say something quite the opposite to his actual vote!

For example, a member may vote in favor of a particular tax but the statement in the journal defending this vote, offers every reason imaginable as to why the tax is unjust.

Meanwhile a speech on the floor has not been necessary. There has been no verbal utterance of the actual insertion in the record.

The possibility of awkward and sometimes embarrassing floor debate has been avoided.

What then is the purpose of this seemingly useless activity? As campaigns for office progress these dusty statements "in the record" are removed from mothballs.

Excerpts from the journals are quoted liberally in the heat of campaign. Reproductions are frequently mailed to constituents on the home front. They oftentimes become the basis for political advertisements.

Excerpts from a journal provide excellent material to wave dramatically before spellbound audiences.

With 210 seats in the House up next year along with half of the 50 Senate seats, the journals are destined for a heavy workout, especially in light of the tax fiddle-faddle that may well be in the offing this year, among other things.

The journals now are starting to build up in volume as the 1953 session slips into stride. No telling what they may be like by the end of the session!

The Allen-Scott Report

Demos Need Cash

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, February 7 — How the Kennedy administration loves those $1,000-a-plate fundraising dinners!

The one held in the capital last month, to celebrate the New Frontier's second anniversary, was so lushly lucrative that at least three others are contemplated.

The next one will be in Los Angeles in April. Others definitely slated are in Chicago and New York, with Miami a strong possibility. The dates are still open.

The President will attend each of these affairs and deliver a speech.

According to National Chairman John Bailey, the anniversary celebration netted a clear $12 million.

Ambitious goal of the $1,000-a-plate dinner plan is to raise $2.5 million for the Democratic committee's coffers. Bailey and his lieutenants estimate that is needed to meet the committee's mounting operating expenses and to prepare for next year's tough presidential battle.

Privately they now expect it to be rough and costly, and far more uncertain than they hoped it would be.

Bailey and National Treasurer Richard Maguire are no longer talking about raising money to pay the committee's debt from the 1960 race. Actually that was cleared more than a year ago, but for a long time this once $900,000 obligation was a handy bogeyman to wheedle contributions from the faithful — and others.

Now Bailey and Maguire are stressing the national committee's heavy expenses and need to get ready for next year's arduous election struggle.

Where It's Going — Committee insiders say its expenses are running at around $100,000 a month.

One reason cited for this is a "fixed charge" of $20,000 a month — $10,000 each to the Senate and House Democratic Campaign Committees. In return for these monthly checks, the two committees have merged their fund-raising activities with those of the national committee.

Also under consideration is setting up a pulse-taking agency in the national committee.

This proposed polling outfit would supplant the private organizations that have been hired for this work. The President and his political leaders are strong believers in polls and use them constantly. But they had some disconcerting experiences with private pollsters last year.

One was in Kentucky, where Republican Senator Thurston Morton won re-election by a big majority. The administration's pollsters came up with figures showing he would be decisively defeated. They were equally wrong in adjoining Indiana. There the pollsters gave the victory to Republican Senator Homer Capehart, only to have his youthful Democratic opponent, Birch Bayh, win by a good margin.

Attorney General Robert Kennedy, the real backstage ruler of the national ruler committee, favors establishing its own polling organization. The President also is credited as being for that.

The big problem is how much it will cost, and that is now under study.

Always Under Foot — There is one Washington news photographer who is thoroughly fed up with the Kennedys, and makes no bones about it.

He voiced these indignant feelings after an experience with Senator Ted Kennedy, ambitious 30-year-old brother of the President. The photographer, assigned to cover a dinner for new senators, spotted Wisconsin's new Senator Gaylord Nelson chatting with Louisiana's veteran Senator Russell Long.

The cameraman asked them to pose for a shot. As he was focusing to snap a picture, young Kennedy, who had been standing nearby, strode over and without being asked placed himself between Long and Nelson, with an arm on each as he couldn't be squeezed out.

Angry but unable to do anything about the matter, the photographer irately snapped one picture and then stalked away, remarking loudly:

"That's what I can't stand about these Kennedys. They're always pushing themselves. You can never get away from them. They not only tell you what to do, but how to do it; what profile they want taken, and how many pictures. I'm fed up, but how do you get rid of them?"

Politicians — Attorney General Robert Kennedy is still being needed about that long-standing vacancy on the federal bench in New Mexico. This appointment has gone unfilled for nearly a year, with no explanation from the Attorney General, or his brother, the President. The needler is Federal Judge Waldo Rogers, Albuquerque, an Eisenhower appointee. Recently, outspoken Rogers remarked to lawyers in his courtroom, "Don't bother Bobby about the urgent need for another judge in our state. He's too busy arguing the first case of any kind in his life." . . . Representative John Shelley's campaign for Mayor of San Francisco this year will be well financed. At a so-called "informal fund-raising luncheon" attended by 310-odd businessmen, more than $32,000 was placed to finance his race in the fall. Foremost among those present and contributing were George Killian, head of American President Lines, Clarence Heller stock broker, and Thomas Mellon, former San Francisco Police Commissioner.

Senator Olin Johnston, D-S.C., chairman of the Post Office Committee, has been advised by his doctor to sell the home he has occupied in the capital for more than 20 years. The physician urged this because greatly increased traffic now passing the house is making Johnston nervous.

Dear Abby

Cause For A Headache

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I was in the drug department of a large store. I was writing down the prices of some vitamins when a sales clerk walked over to me and asked, "May I help you?" I replied, "Yes, where can I find the aspirin?" He asked, "Are you comparing prices?"

I answered, "Of course, I always do." He replied, "Then find the aspirin yourself" and walked away. I was stunned.

I want to know if I was within my rights. Abby? Is there any law against writing down the prices of three or four different items in a store? I have to compare prices because I need every penny I can save.

INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: You were surely within your rights. The sales clerk was rude. You should have reported him to the manager and, believe me, HE'D have soon found the aspirin in anticipation of a big headache.

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a man who seems crazy over me when we are together, but there is another girl. He says he can't decide between us. I have been waiting for a year for him to make up his mind. He has his picture on his dashboard and it spoils my evening every time I get into his car. He dates me on Mondays and Thursdays and she gets him the rest of the week. Should I demand that he make a choice?

DAILY READER

DEAR READER: When you give a man an ultimatum, be prepared to lose. Your competition may be on the dashboard — but I think you're the one he is taking for a ride. Beat him to the exit and call it quits.

DEAR ABBY: My wife has an old metal box (she calls it her "treasure chest"). It is filled with junk. Pictures of our children (all grown and gone), their baby shoes and the stuff they made in school. She even has an old gas mask her brother had in World War I. (He's dead now.) She goes through these things every once in a while and has

CD Shelter Supplies Arrive

GAYLORD Heberling, Civil Defense designated shelter official for Stroudsburg, yesterday received five tons of public fallout shelter supplies, including food, water, sanitation, medical and radiological equipment.

The supplies will be stockpiled in buildings approved by a federal survey team. Stroudsburg shelters to be stocked include the U. S. Post Office, First-Stroudsburg National Bank, Stroudsburg Municipal Building, Monroe County Courthouse, Ray Price Motors, Ramsey Elementary School and Stroud Union High School.

E. Burg's Next

It was announced that East Stroudsburg will receive supplies for its shelters in the near future.

Marvin E. Abel, county CD director, said yesterday home preparedness is still one of the most important factors in self-survival. The designated shelters are for persons who may be caught away from home in an emergency. Booklets and advice on home preparedness are available at the county CD office in the court house and from local directors.

Wayne Firm Damaged By Fire

HONESDALE — Fire yesterday damaged a building occupied by the Maple City Amusement Co. at rear 546 Main St., Honesdale.

The fire was discovered at 9:30 a.m. by a passerby who notified Vincent J. Martone, Honesdale fire chief, who resides nearby.

Honesdale Fire Co. 1, which has its headquarters near the Maple City Amusement Co., responded.

Because buildings in that area are in close proximity, a box alarm was sounded immediately and the remaining three Honesdale fire companies responded.

Flames were shooting 20 to 30 feet into the air when the firemen arrived.

Fire Chief Martone said the fire started in the north end of the 1½-story wood structure, in a rear room on the first floor. Amusement machines and juke boxes undergoing repairs are stored in that section of the building.

The structure is owned by Al Polt of Honesdale. Clarence Erik, 536 Main St., Honesdale, owns and operates the amusement firm.

In addition to damage to the building and contents, a car owned by Erik and a panel truck owned by the firm were damaged.

Mystery Man Sought By Jaycees

THE Pocono Mountain Jaycees are still seeking their "Mystery Man" who is worth $20 to the finder. The contest is part of their membership drive for this year.

Kay Remsyder, membership chairman, announced that despite the 30 per cent membership increase accomplished during the two weeks of campaigning, no one has asked the mystery man to join.

The Jaycee member who signs up the mystery man before tonight's annual Distinguished Service Award — Bosses Night Banquet in the Penn-Stroud will receive $25.

The following clues to the mystery man's identity were given: he is prominent in the community, is single, has more than one boss, and is a graduate of college.

The banquet tonight will climax Jaycee Week, being held this week. Howard Coslett, chapter secretary, is leading in membership enrollments with six new members since Feb. 1.

Politician, Sports Figure Top Jaycees' Fete Tonight

TWO guest speakers and presentation of the annual distinguished service award will highlight tonight's annual dinner of the Pocono Mountains Junior Chamber of Commerce in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Dick Lynch, star defensive back for the New York Giants professional football team, and Sen. Robert Casey, D-Lackawanna, the youngest Democrat ever elected to the state senate, will be the speakers.

Asher W. Resh, 35, East Stroudsburg, RD 2, will receive the Jaycees' award for outstanding service to the community.

Resh was nominated by Rev. Harold C. Eaton, pastor of East Stroudsburg Methodist Church. Resh serves on the church's board and is leader of Boy Scout Troop 81, sponsored by the church.

Lynch, an all-state back at Phillipsburg, N. J., Parochial high school, gained national prominence while playing for Notre Dame, scoring the only touchdown in a 7-0 win over Oklahoma which broke the Sooners' 47-game winning streak.

Casey, 31, is married and the father of six children. He represents the 22nd Senatorial District and based much of his campaign for election on support of Project 70, a plan by which the Commonwealth will spend approximately $70,000,000 to purchase land for recreational and park use and to stimulate tourist travel for the state.

Edwin Krawitz, Stroudsburg attorney, will be toastmaster for the dinner.

Kreger Sees Conservation Challenged

A REVOLUTION in the use of land and water has challenged America's conservation agencies, such as county conservation districts, according to E. Elmer Kreger of the Monroe County Soil Conservation District.

Kreger is in Denver, Colo., with other Pennsylvanians attending the annual meeting of the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts.

Kreger, of Gilbert, said the conference sessions underscore the fact that the use of land for agricultural production is dwindling, especially in areas with burgeoning urban growth. More and more land is being diverted for shopping centers, airports, highways, shopping centers and housing developments, he said.

The problem is how conservation districts can help promote orderly shifts in land use, Kreger said.

One step is for districts to provide soil surveys and technical guidance in land and water control to non-agricultural land users, says Amos Funk, Millersville, president of the state district association and leader of the delegation.

This is being done in many counties already, he said. Examples of such services include advice to industry in plant location and to park commissions in developing erosion control and silt prevention facilities, Kreger added.

Another step Funk proposed was greater district participation in rural areas development programs. These programs, sponsored largely by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, are aimed at improving economic conditions in rural areas.

There are now 61 county soil conservation districts in Pennsylvania. They cover about 85 per cent of the state's land area.

Farmers Tax Deadline Is Feb. 15

FARMERS earning at least two-thirds of their 1962 gross income from agriculture must file their final Federal income tax returns and pay any taxes due by Friday, Feb. 15, 1963, if they did not file the required estimated returns by January 15, according to Ellis R. Rogers, District Director of Internal Revenue in Scranton.

The IRS has a booklet, "Farmer's Tax Guide," which is available at the Agricultural Agent's Office or at the nearest Internal Revenue Office. Farmers having tax questions may obtain a free copy of this booklet. It is written in non-technical language and contains numerous examples showing how tax rules apply in actual situations. A check list of farm income and expenses and a sample filled-in return form is included. While the booklet was written primarily to assist farmers in the preparation of their 1962 tax returns, it will also be useful to them as a tax reference guide throughout the year.

Profit For Budd

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Budd Co. yesterday reported profits of $5,692,000 last year, compared to a 1961 deficit of $1,662,000. Sales were up 23 per cent.

President Edward G. Budd Jr. reported sales of $311,184,000 and common share earnings of $1.19 compared with $253,611,000 and a 51 cent share deficit in '61.

The company is a major producer of automobile bodies and railroad and transit cars. Budd reported that fourth quarter earnings were $1,850,000 or 40 cents a share compared with $1,038,000 and 21 cents in the similar 1961 period.

Bangor Council Okays Budget

BANGOR — Members of the Bangor Borough Council at its regular session this week with Walter Warrick, president, adopted the 1963 borough budget calling for income and expenditures of some $171,792.60. Council had previously tentatively adopted this budget, but increased expenditures in one area last evening to provide police protection for school children at crossings near the several schools of the community.

Upon the recommendation of the Safety Committee of which Miles Heller is the chairman, council as the result of a meeting with a committee of the Bangor Area Joint School System, provided crossing guards at three public schools and at the Pius X High School. This action required an estimated additional expenditure of some $1440 for police protection in the year.

Plans were made to place crossing guards at the Roosevelt, McKinley and Lincoln Schools and at the Pius X High School if requested. The guards would be paid at the rate of $1.25 per hour and would be attired in a cape and cap for identification. Chester Gambrell was named as the guard at the Roosevelt School; Charles Chamberlain at the McKinley School and James Miller at the Lincoln School. An individual will be named later for the Catholic School if requested.

The committee was also given authority along with the mayor to make schedules for the guards and to secure replacements when and where needed.

Council accepted the resignation of Ralph P. Houck as a member of the Borough Sewer Authority. Mr. Houck has moved from the Third Ward of the borough into the township and was therefore not qualified to continue in office by virtue of residence.

Hamm Named
John D. Hamm, a resident of North Third Street in the First Ward, was named to replace Houck on the authority. It was deemed advisable to place a First Ward resident on the authority since that was the only ward of the borough not represented on the authority. Mr. Houck had been a Third Ward resident.

Hamm will fill the four-year term still remaining in his tenure of office. A letter of appreciation to Mr. Houck for his service to the borough was ordered sent by council.

Mine Roof Fall Kills Workman
APOLLO, Pa. (AP)—A roof fall at a nearby coal mine killed one man and injured another Wednesday. A third miner escaped injury.

Feldrew Speranza, 35, of West Lebanon, Indiana County, was killed. He had been employed at the Corry Mine near Spring Church for three weeks.

Frank Busi, 40, of Saltburg R. D. 1 was listed in fair condition at West Penn Hospital in Pittsburgh.

It was not determined what caused the roof fall. Coroner Jack Kennedy of Armstrong County said there was no indication of any negligence.

The three men were timbering the roof. Another man was outside the mine getting timber.

Earl, Dominick and Bernard Speranza, cousins of the victim, own the mine.

ceipts, $3,583.51; expenses, $365.65; 1481 connecting permits issued; $39,500 collected for 1960 units and 1280 units connected to the system as of Feb. 1. Revenue expected for the period Oct., Nov. and Dec., $16,540.38.

It was noted at the meeting that preliminary notices have been received by the borough that it will be eligible for some $12,000 in grants for the sewer construction from the Federal Government.

According to Councilmen Rex Erdman and William Holland, these grants have been made possible to the borough through the efforts of Congressman Francis Walter. In appreciation of this effort, Council authorized a letter be sent to Congressman Walter for his efforts. In order that the papers incident to the receipt of the money might be processed as soon as possible the borough secretary and president of council were authorized to certify the proper papers through Solicitor J. Lawrence Davis. Note was also made of the fact that state aid for the sewer system has never been obtained and it was originally reported that the state would subsidize the program by some $6300 per year starting in 1961. No funds to this date have been received from the state. It was reported. An investigation into the matter was undertaken by proper council committees.

Library Repairs
Merlin Tucker, chairman of the building and grounds committee, reported that repairs to the interior of the library building will be made in the very near future. He also noted that the planned repairs to the council chambers will be ready for council approval by the March meeting.

A report of the sidewalk committee was rendered by Leonard Gruppo, chairman who stated that an effort to resolve the costs of new sidewalks on South Main Street with some 14 residents was being undertaken. No satisfactory progress has been made at this point and further assistance from the C and T. Construction Company on its responsibility will be viewed.

Council approved the installation of a new fire plug at the corner of Northampton Street and Long's Alley at the request of Fire Chief Benjamin Albert.

Mayor Quintus LaBar reported the following collections for the past month totalling $1,328.04 divided as follows: licenses, $117.50; fines, $160.50; building and digging permits, $135.50 and parking meters, $914.54. The following balances were reported in the accounts of the borough: general fund, $9,930.35 and State Highway Aid Fund, $5,192.55.

Portland, Saylorsburg Exchanges To Be Converted

PORTLAND — On March 3, the Portland and Saylorsburg exchanges of the Commonwealth Telephone Company will be converted to All-Number Calling with each telephone number being composed of seven digits, A. W. Ryder, District Manager, announced yesterday.

Ryder announced that the new seven-digit telephone numbers will be listed in the new Bangor directory, which will be delivered several days before the numbers are placed in service. Number cards will be forwarded to all customers for them to place on all telephones prior to the change-over. Ryder emphasized that this change is being made to keep pace with the growing demands for telephone service.

Until now, 2-5 numbering was employed to allow an exchange's participation in the nationwide toll dialing network. Under this plan, exchanges were given exchange name designations such as Wyan-dotte and TWinoaks plus a five-digit number. The number, when dialled, would call for dialing WY or TV and the five digits.

With the change in March, the numbers will have seven digits. The first three numbers, Ryder said, will be 897 for Portland and 992 for Saylorsburg. or example, a typical Portland number will be listed as 897-6867, and a typical Saylorsburg number will be 992-6273. The new numbering system harmonizes with the rest of the exchanges nationwide which are rapidly converting to ANC.

Ryder explained that the truth of the matter is that the nation's telephone system is doing away with the alphabet. Peculiar as it may seem, the reason is that the telephone people are running out of — of all things, phone numbers. Since 1950, nearly 25 million phones have been added in this country. Each one needed a number with a word prefix that people could understand, like Wyan-dotte, TWinoaks or EVergreen. The problem of finding such prefixes was getting tougher all the time.

Flowers Have Meanings

By George Abraham

LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS: Quite often garden club members ask me for information regarding the language of flowers. In grandmother's day it meant more than today. Flowers do have certain meanings. For example, pansies mean, "I'm thinking to you."

Gladolius mean "Give me a break, I'm really sincere" and Aster means "Afterthought."

Free: Would you like to know what other flowers mean? I have a list of them along with symbols of Wedding Anniversaries and if you would like a tree copy to test on your family and friends, just send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ask for my bulletin, Language Of Flowers. My guide also lists flowers and birthstones for each month. This type of information will be useful in your Green Thumb library.

Hedge Plants: Homeowners troubled with dogs or people "cutting" across their lawns can eliminate these nuisances by planting a thorny plant such as the red leaved barberry or the green leaf type. The red leaf type has glossy purplish red leaves (and thorns!). The red leaf types must be planted in full sun if you want that rich-red coloring.

The Green leaf barberry is one of the best all purpose hedges, having green leaves in summer, changing to bright colors in fall. The bright scarlet berries add winter interest and the birds like them. Like the red leaf barberry, it bears and shears well, and makes a "tight" hedge. It is true that leaves get caught in the bottom of these hedges, but why worry about them?

Compost Piles: A state college economist made a survey and found that the typical American housewife throws away 400 lbs. of edible food each year. If this food were dumped on the compost pile instead of burned, you'd get some of your money back in the form of a soil conditioner.

So, if you have a problem soil (one that's too sandy or too clayey) save your table scraps, old flowers, clippings, mowings, shavings and what have you, for the compost. Mix these with regular soil, weeds, leaves, plant food and lime and you'll have a lot of the compost which gardeners rave about.

Home Landscaping: In dressing up the front of your home, which should you use — flowering shrubs or evergreens? If your budget can stand it, I'd recommend evergreens for year round beauty. Actually, evergreens are not as expensive as many believe. Start with smaller ones if you cannot afford the larger ones.

Just make sure you allow enough room for growth. Many home owners are combining evergreens with flowering shrubs, and it works out nicely. Just make sure you do not select high growing sorts (such as lilac) to mix with evergreens in the foundation planting. Stick to the dwarf, low growing types or they'll crowd each other out.

Regardless of which you choose, the evergreens or non-evergreens, be prepared to do a few minutes' trimming each season to keep the shrubs in bound. Don't forget that evergreens come in various shapes: narrow upright, round, and spreading.

Don't make the mistake of thinking all evergreens are evergreens. You'll need the taller, upright types on corners, entrances and where there is a great deal of space between windows.

Crown Of Thorns: One reader tells me she has good luck standing her crown of thorn plant in a pot of water, and another tells me she allows it to get dry before watering. What's the best way to handle this item?

If we grow ours in a dry soil the leaves will develop, then drop. I feel it needs a uniform supply of water for leaves and flowers. Soil should be porous and well drained. Leaves will naturally start dropping when plant wants to rest and when this happens you should allow the soil to be nearly dry until new growth appears.

If the plant has a sunny window, a uniform supply of moisture and a temperature range from 60 to 72 degs., it should flower for you 8 or 9 months out of the year.

Peppers: Getting pepper seed to germinate is quite a problem sometimes. What's the secret? First, have a loose mixture such as one-third sand, one-third loam and one-third peat, with vermiculite or perlite added. Sow the seed and cover with 1/4" of loose material, water the seed box well, and then place in a temperature of 80 to 90 degs. Peppers like it hot for best germination.

If temperature is below 70 degs., germination is low. I think you'll find that a temperature of 80 degs. or so is best for most seeds to germinate.

Seed lying in a cold material are apt to rot before they germinate. Regardless of which seed you sow, scatter them lightly for husky plants. If seeds are sown too thickly you get spindly plants.

Plan to sow about 7 to 10 small seed or 4 to 7 large seed per inch of row. For fine seed, press them into the starting material, rather than cover them. Heavier seed should be covered.

How about soil sterilization to check "Damping off?" Several means are available. If you have a lot of soil, formaldehyde is fine. Add 2 1/2 tablespoons of this material (called "formalin") to one cup of water.

Sprinkle this on a bushel of soil, mix it well, and cover with a plastic sheet to confine fumes. After two days, stir up the soil and sow seed. Small amounts of soil can be sterilized by baking in an oven (250 degs. F.) for 1/2 hour.

Allow soil to cool before sowing. Or you can pressure-cook the soil at 5 lbs. pressure for 20 minutes or so.

Question Box

Question Of The Week — D. E. of Marshalls Creek: "I have a potted lemon and orange tree, both planted in black humus soil. The trees are about 2 ft. tall, get a sticky substance on the leaves, which eventually turn black and messy. What causes this?"

There are three types of insects that might be responsible: aphids, scale and mealy bugs. These secrete a honeydew material upon which a sooty fungus thrives, making the foliage messy. Control consists of removing the pests by sprays or dipping in a soapy solution of malathion.

Aphids are usually found on the tender young tips, whereas scale and mealy bugs can be found on the undersides of the leaves on the stems.

Handpicking and destroying will handle minor infestations, and will do a lot to keep them from spreading. Dipping a piece of cotton in alcohol and touching individual cottony masses will eliminate the white mealy bugs.

Plan on giving your plants a weekly bath, either in the shower, or by dipping in a pail of soapy water to which has been added some malathion.

B. E. of Bartonsville: "Last year our entire strawberry crop was ruined by catfaced berries. They were shrunken or had hardened ends and I thought this was due to late spring frosts. I have one of your clippings which said it was due to an insect. Please tell me what we can do to prevent the same thing this year."

Yes, chances are your strawberries had the tarnished plant bug.

This pest injects a small amount of poison into the plant tissue, causing berries to take on the "cat-faced" appearance. We used to blame this type of injury on spring frosts, but actually it's due to the effects of the tarnished plant bug.

Control: spray the plants in May, after the blossoms had formed and when the young fruit has started to expand. Materials to use consist of DDT or malathion.

T. N. of Stroudsburg: "Is it possible to start a tree from seeds obtained from canned apricots. How about prunes? Can they be started this way?"

The canning process usually kills the embryo in the canned fruit so it's not possible to start trees that way. It wouldn't be advisable to start trees this way since fruit from such trees would be "wild."

Nurserymen have to bud "tame" stock on "wild" stock to produce trees with edible fruit, and most trees started from pits will produce sour, wild fruit.

If you want good apricot or prune trees invest in budded plants from your nursery. Otherwise, you may be nursing a tree along for years, only to find it is worthless.

Just Between Us—

A little of the ice melted out of our dispositions yesterday as we unturtled our necks from our coat collars and took a cautious look around. The front of the new dormitory at the college has risen, looming like a miniature skyscraper against the bulk of Big Pocono in the distance.

Even the news piled up on the desk seemed to have a little more snap to it even, though the juxtaposition of the announcement of the Marriage Roundtable for engaged couples and the report of the Hamilton PTA caused me some wry mental reservations.

If engaged couples would take note of all the things that are going to be expected of them as parents, they might just call the whole thing off. On top of getting the children to brush their teeth after every meal and keeping them clean, healthy, well-mannered and up on their school work, they're supposed to impart culture, too, with a capital C.

Like making sure finger-painting and modeling clay are always available, giving them time for music practice and for listening to good music, taking them to music lessons,

Imagination Adds Fun To Foods, Junior Women Told

How every-day food can be made interesting by using color, garnishes and imagination was demonstrated for members of the Junior Women's Club at their meeting on Monday night at the Stroud Community House.

Mrs. Robert A. Miller was the guest speaker on the theme "Fun With Food." An example of imagination transformed bagels into a pinwheel secured at the center by an olive or pickle and a toothpick. Mrs. Miller also demonstrated clever ideas for hors d'oeuvres and party sandwiches.

After the program, Mrs. Miller gave the samples used in the demonstration to members and also samples of gourmet foods from around the world donated by her husband, Robert Miller, of the Wirt D. Miller Gourmet Store.

Dr. James C. Fahl spoke briefly to the group on uterine cancer which can be cured if detected early, but which caused seven deaths in Monroe County last year. He urged all women to have the simple, painless "pap stain" test every year.

'Office-Gossipy' Girls Hurt Themselves

By Roberta Fleming Roesch
A reader who signs himself "Patient Boss" recently wrote us this letter.

"I am an executive and I have a secretary who greets me at my office door with gossip every morning. She doesn't even wait until I get my coat off and she acts the same with my other employees.

Not Ethical
This girl is capable in many ways, but this is one way that she's certainly not ethical. Surely some other bosses run into this same problem, so would you be kind enough to say something about this in your column?"

To our way of thinking, a girl whose tongue rattles tales to the boss before he takes off his coat is lucky to even have a job!

Keeps Job
Chances are high, however, that this particular gossip still hangs on to a job for one of two reasons.

Either she lives where the secretarial shortage is so acute that any secretary is better than no secretary or she's so well-trained in her present job, and so adept at typing and transcription, that her boss would rather put up with her as long as he can stand it and as long as no one gets hurt.

Unpleasant Thing
But gossip is an ugly thing and this status quo can't last forever because being a "Him" or "Her" in the gossip gallery is a sure way to write a ticket to unpopularity, hurt and loss of a job.

In the "Unpopularity" department, you stand a good chance of ending up unpopular yourself, because even those colleagues who listen lose respect for you. Sometimes, too, they wind up laughing when your back is turned because, often, the office gossip is also the butt of office jokes, until someone gets hurt.

In the "Hurt" department, it's just about inevitable that you—as well as others—will eventually get hurt.

For example, in an office where I worked one time we

Community Offers Cultural Advantages; Hamilton Parents Urged To Use Them

Exposing their children to culture in its many forms is a relatively painless process for parents in Monroe County according to the symposium on "Cultural Advantages in our Community."

Mrs. David Harrington served as moderator of the discussion which covered drama, music, the dance, literature, and other phases of art. As a background Mrs. Harrington traced the history of the Pocono Art Center, founded in 1959 to promote painting, sculpture and writing. Meeting first at the Indian Queen, the Pocono Art Center has a gallery on the third floor of the Penney building at Sixth and Main Sts. in Stroudsburg, as well as the use of The Old Stone House, Brown and Braeside Ave. in Stroudsburg, which Marla Clapp DeRocco purchased and plans to donate to the community as a museum.

The Art Center has also received the gift of 10 acres of land on which they hope some day to establish a center for the performing arts as well as studios and galleries.

Mrs. Harrington described the Music Festival at Tamiment, featuring the Curtis String Quartette, sponsored by the Art Center which receives the proceeds from the series of concerts.

Two members of the symposium are teaching at the Art Center.

Drama Classes
Jana Pearce, in private life, Mrs. Jack Irwin, is teaching the drama classes. She stressed the importance of acting for the non-professional as a way of expression and described Method Acting, which teaches the use of the whole body as an instrument of expression.

Children, she said, are natural subjects for the method school of acting and voiced her hopes for a real Children's Theatre, stressing the benefits of good live theatre for children.

Carol Cartwright, who teaches ballet classes at the Art Center, stressed dancing as a method of expression, giving to children a sense of pride, control of their bodies and self-assurance. Because of its rigorous training, she advised that children not be given ballet until the age of eight.

Other members of the symposium were members of the school staff.

Mrs. Nancy Shoemaker, fifth grade teacher, outlined the attempts of the third and fifth grade teachers to introduce Spanish and French to the children, with more formal instruction being introduced in the sixth grade.

Parents can encourage their children's interest in art by supplying them with material and time and space to use it, Mrs. Shoemaker suggested.

Mrs. Thomas Knepp, elementary school librarian for Stroud Union District, also emphasized the role of the parent in promoting interest in literature. Parents who surround themselves with good books and who like to read stimulate their children to read, she said, and outlined the types of good books for children.

In the discussion of television, Mrs. Knepp pointed out that some kind of television programs actually encourage reading.

Ralph Harrison of the elementary music faculty, said that music lessons were not merely for the talented child. Music can also acquaint the children with composers, and the countries from which music comes.

He urged parents to provide time for practice and to expose their children to good music as well as the popular music in their homes and to take them to concerts. This spring the District Band festival in East Stroudsburg March 7, 8 and 9, and the coming Navy Band Concert provide such an opportunity, he said, and urged parents to take their children to the Saturday afternoon concert at the Tamiment Music Festival. He also called attention to the coming Community Concert with John Eaton.

In speaking of music appreciation, he urged that parents encourage their children to listen to music for its own sake rather than as a background to other activities.

The program was introduced by Mrs. Diane Shanley, program chairman.

At the brief business meeting which preceded the program, the PTA voted to purchase a Physeducator, recommended by George Metropolis of the health education department as useful in developing the muscles of the arms, chest and upper back.

Members were urged to attend the Founder's Day program to be held February 12 at the Morey School when Dr. Agatha Townsend, reading consultant for the Stroud Union School District will be the speaker.

Also announced was the meeting of the Stroud Union Curriculum Study Committee on Feb. 21 at the Arlington School when Earl Groner, superintendent will discuss the School Reorganization bill.

In this connection, a letter was read from Senator William Z. Scott whom the PTA had asked to keep them informed on the status of the bill, enclosing the summary of the chairman of the committee and details of the proposed moratorium.

The next Hamilton PTA meeting will be held March 25.

Marriage Roundtable For Engaged Couples In March

"The most worthwhile hours my fiancée and I have spent together in planning our future life" is the last year's "Marriage Roundtable" sponsored by the Monroe County Ministerium.

To help engaged and newly-married couples off to a good start in their marriage, the Monroe County Ministerium has announced that it will hold this year's "Roundtable"—a one day session—on Saturday, March 16. The session will be held again this year at the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. with luncheon being served at noon.

This is the fourth year that the course has been offered to Monroe Countians and the surrounding areas. It is hoped that by condensing the program into a one-day session young people from the outlying sections will be able to attend more easily.

It is the aim of the "Marriage Roundtable" to give accurate

Republicans' TLC Council Board Meets

The executive board of the newly-organized TLC Council of Republican Women met yesterday morning at 9:30 a.m. at the Penn-Stroud Hotel when they held a business meeting over coffee.

After discussion, the TLC was continued as a council name, standing for truth, love and courage. After comparing the calendar of meetings of other councils, the date of the first Wednesday of each month was selected as meeting dates. For the present dues for active and associate members will remain the same.

Mrs. Mervin Fontanella, president, announced that nine new members had been added, including four associate members. Immediately after the meeting, members of the board started a house-to-house visitation of prospective new members. Mrs. Donald Robbins Sr. is the chairman of the membership committee, and may be called during the day at 421-2198.

The next meeting will be held March 6 at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Fontanella in Swiftwater.

Protect little feet right from the start with properly fitted

BUSTER BROWN shoes

You can't be too careful about your baby's first shoes. A poorly fitted shoe can push the foot out of shape... without a murmur of complaint from your child. That's why Buster Brown has a correctly made and fitted shoe for every stage of your baby's development. For crawlers, the super-soft sole and upper of Softie is just right. Toddlers need the firmer sole and heel counter of Walkie. After starting to walk, he should have the sturdy sole and stronger ankle support of Linden. To properly fit your child, we use the famous Buster Brown 6-Point Fitting Plan. This measures both feet at all key points and allows just the right amount of growing room. Let us start your child off with shoes that are properly fitted.

I saw her again Tuesday afternoon on a Sears television set, after Margaret Miller telephoned to say Clara was a contestant on "Who Do You Trust?" She hasn't changed a great deal. She is older, of course... but much as ever, and apparently enjoying her visit before the camera. Actually she is quite photogenic, and very adept at "the double take"—a born actress.

Edna Bush accuses me of showing favoritism where our Wyckoff mannequins are concerned. "You didn't mention that all the headless figures have been bequeathed to the fabrics department and I've been draping them in the new fabrics," Edna tells me that winding these figures in such a fashion they seem to be wearing dresses is quite a trick, but if anyone can do it I'm sure she can. The gal's clever, the mannequins are willing, and the fabrics are both beautiful and inexpensive. Who could ask for more? ... Harvey Hay would like me to remind you that men also like Valentines, and our Men's Shop is selling Weldon pajamas with striped trousers and heart-figured tops, at 5.00; as well as T-shirts (S-M-L-XL) with large red, arrow-pierced hearts and a great big "OUCH" at 1.50. This design washes off (thank goodness!). There are also Valentine neckties which a man better not accept or wear unless he's really ripe for tying! ... Gracie Grace calls to say the response to her Junior Women's Club request for nylon hosiery with runs has been most gratifying. One box was mailed to Wyckoff's from New York—our column gets around! Contributions may be left in a big box in our Wyckoff Frigidaire department and will be used for stuffing the toys Junior Women are making for the S.S. Hope, our great hospital ship which calls at the ports of varied nations upon request, to offer treatment and training. Gracie says many of the toys are being made of light colored cloth, so the Juniors are hoping nurses, waitresses, and receptionists will contribute their discarded white stockings... When Gracie telephoned I was in the Millinery department looking over the early arrivals in our Spring collection. As usual, Lucila Mendez has stolen the show with some of the most intriguingly molded straws of varied textures I've ever seen. There are shiny bowls, domes, and berets; there are dull, rough braided straws, and there is one black hat of silk fabric that looks like something Napoleon would have worn, when placed upon the head correctly, and, when set sideways upon the head looks like a hat I myself might wear. Spring—it's wonderful; hats—they're mad, as always!

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Remember Clara Adams, of Tannersville, who made a name for herself as the lone woman passenger on a series of "first flights" that made aviation history? Tall, lean, aristocratic of feature, Clara played the piano beautifully and had the longest, whitest, most slender hands I have ever seen. They always fascinated me, and any hand lotion manufacturer would have gladly solicited her endorsement, I am sure.

THAT EVIL number 13 cropped up three times on the scholastic basketball front Tuesday night—but in one instance the figure was a joyous one.

For the Pleasant Valley Bears and the Pius X Royals, however, the number was, indeed, a somber one. Both quintets suffered their 13th consecutive loss of the campaign—and like that lovely old baseball legend of "Casey at the Bat," just as there was no joy in Mudville that day, so was there no joy in the hamlets of Roseto and Brodheadsville for the Bears and the Royals.

But happy and gay was the State Belt town of Bangor. Coach Bill Penzell, guiding the speedy, aggressive and sharp-shooting Slaters in his first year as head basketball coach, saw his team win their 13th game of the season to tie the school mark for most wins in one hoop campaign. The Slaters could well break that mark tomorrow evening when they take on the Cavaliers of Coach Dale Baker's East Stroudsburg High squad in the Eastburg gym.

Bangor's citizenry certainly has caught the basketball fever through the imaginative style of play that Penzell has brought to the new Five Points gym. Not only did the police lock the doors Tuesday night after the gym rapidly filled to capacity with more than 1200 already admitted, but some 300 others were turned away, to boot.

Such wild enthusiasm among the followers of a basketball team in this area noted so much for its football madness is certainly refreshing.

Pennsylvania State Colleges' Athletic Conference (PSCAC) is enjoying one of its best wrestling seasons in its 12-year history. Currently, all 11 colleges of the 14-member conference participating in the wrestling sport show a winning record.

Bloomsburg, the defending PSCAC and NAIA champion, leads the field with nine wins and a tournament victory against conference opponents as well as against the nation's best collegiate wrestling teams. The Huskies are favored to repeat in the 18th annual PSCAC tournament at Shippensburg on March 1 and 2.

But don't count Lock Haven, the winningest team in conference tournament history and long recognized as one of the nation's top teams, short in the up-coming tournament as well as in the annual dual-match against arch rival Bloomsburg on Feb. 23. Lock Haven trimmed East Stroudsburg, 24-8, Tuesday.

Bloomsburg and Lock Haven both have defeated Rochester by almost identical scores. And Lock Haven's team is at full strength now after injuries and ineligibility weakened the Bald Eagles last month. Roger Cook (191), who has a collegiate record of 23 wins, three losses and two ties, has returned to the lineup and recorded three straight wins.

Bob Hall (191) and Bill Garson, defending conference heavyweight champion, both of Bloomsburg, lead the victory parade for the current season with nine wins and one tie apiece. Karl Kemble, of Shippensburg, and Ron McPherson of California, heavyweights, are undefeated with six wins apiece, although Ron has been tied once. Indiana boasts of three matmen with six wins and no defeats; they are Tom Edwards (137), Cal Thomas (147) and Lou Gehobsky (167). Fred Powell (130) of Lock Haven, has won six matches this season to extend his winning streak to 23 with a career record of 30 wins.

Bill Walizer (137) of Lock Haven had won 19 straight before being out-pointed by Iowa State. Walizer has career record of 38 wins—third highest in Lock Haven's spectacular wrestling history. Bob Quzzo (130) of East Stroudsburg, is undefeated in six outings, recording his team's only win over powerful Bloomsburg. Bob Dalling (123) of East Stroudsburg, was riding a five-match streak when Bill Hughes of Bloomsburg won their match.

Roger Sanders (157) of West Chester won four straight this year to run his streak to 17 straight. The Rams' upset over previously undefeated Lycoming last week places the Chester Countians in the favorite position to win the Middle Atlantic Conference tournament title. West Chester competes in the MAC tournament instead of the ESAC tournament held on the same dates. West Chester's current record is marred only by a 16-16 draw against Millersville.

Phoenix Open Is Sixth Golf Stop

By CARL BELL

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The $25,000 Phoenix Open, sixth stop on professional golf's annual treasure hunt, could very well produce the first double winner of 1963.

Champions of all five tournaments since the calendar change will be among par-busters beginning a four-day assault on the first, low-scoring desert course at Arizona Country Club Thursday.

Arnold Palmer, top money winner in 1960 and again last year, will gun for his third straight Phoenix title. He had to beat Doug Sanders in a playoff for the $5,300 first prize in 1961 but led all the way and breezed home with a whopping 12-stroke margin last February.

Palmer took the big sack of dough at Los Angeles this winter. Challenging his defense will be the others of golf's big three—

ES Matmen Play Host To Cardinals

EAST STROUDSBURG High School's Cavalier matmen will be shooting for their fourth win of the season against as many losses when they entertain Coach Allen Shollenberger's Pocono Mountain Cardinals in the E-burg gym tonight starting at 7 p.m.

The grapplers of Coach Martin Martz snapped a three-meet losing skid against Belvidere, N. J., Jan. 30 when they trimmed the Jersey squad, 38-18.

East Stroudsburg own one victory already over the Cardinals this season when the two schools met for the first time this season Jan. 10 at Pocono Mountain.

Eastburg's other victory came against Southern Lehigh's JV's.

Set 3 Title Fights In L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Promoter George Parnass announced a triple world title fight card Wednesday featuring welterweight champion Emile Griffith and challenger Luis Rodriguez in Dodge Stadium March 16.

BASKETBALL LOWDOWN — A wild scramble for loose ball sent several players to the floor in last night's game between East Stroudsburg State College and Bloomsburg. Identifiable players are Warriors' Burt Reese (32) and Will Peifley (42). Bloomsburg won, 67-62.

Phillies' Mauch Hopeful Team Will Go In '63

10th of a series of 1963 team prospects written under the manager's own byline.

By GENE MAUCH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last year I popped off and said the Philadelphia Phillies could play 500 ball.

Three days before the season was over we clinched that percentage and I went to sleep.

What the players feel is much more important than my thoughts so I am not placing any limitations on them this year. They increased their output of victories by 34 last year. This was accomplished by steady improvement on the part of a bunch of talented young men.

They're still young and talented and figure to improve every day. This was the plan when we started putting the club together.

The normal improvement I speak of should be particularly evident on the mound in 1963. Art Mahaffey already has established himself as one of the National League's better pitchers but as yet he hasn't come close to his capabilities. Chris Short and Dennis Bennett have two of the best left arms in the National League and together they won 12 of their last 17 decisions in '62. Neither is limited in any way.

Jack Baldschun, our relief ace, won 11 of his last 14 decisions and is a tireless worker in the bullpen. Jack Hamilton, Cal McLish, Dallas Green and the rest are all capable of improving their '62 records.

There is no question in my mind but that Roy Sievers will be far more productive for us after having spent a year in the National League. This, plus the fact that the hitters he was asked to lead can now lead themselves, should ease his mind and permit him to go about his work in a relaxed manner.

There is no reason why for the next five or six years our outfield of Don Demeter, Tony Gonzalez and John Callison can't hit 300 apiece each year and collect 75 home runs among them. Should one of them slip to around .280, the others can hit enough to keep the outfield at an even level. All are capable in the other departments — speed, hands and arms.

The development of Clay Dalrymple as one of the league's better catchers has been most difficult for him. The constant pressure put on him by the manager to bring the pitching staff along and at the same time establish himself as an offensive asset has made his job doubly tough for him. He's handled it well and is eager to do even better.

Tony Taylor at second has been a solid major league ball player but at no time has he approached his full potential. He burns to play on a winner and the continued improvement of the team as a whole should see Taylor playing as he can.

Ruben Amaro and Bob Wine at shortstop give us unusual depth at that position. Both are exceptional fielders and I'm going to enjoy watching them battle for the job.

In my opinion, the Phillies are now ready for what Don Hook, the veteran third baseman and spark plug we got in a trade with Pittsburgh, can give to a ball club. His enthusiasm for, love of and dedication to baseball can't go unnoted. Plus the fact he's a helluva ball player.

For the first time in four years something really is expected of the Phillies and I'm more enthusiastic than ever. Ours is a tough league and the Philadelphia club is one of the reasons.

Germany To Reunite For '64 Olympics

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, announced Wednesday night that East and West Germany will send one team to the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo and Innsbruck.

"A united all-German Olympic team has been agreed upon," he said after a two-hour meeting with representatives from east and west. "We will have one German team with one flag and one anthem."

Willie Daume, president of the West German National Olympic committee, and Heinz Schoebel, president of the East German N.O.C., said athletes for the all-German team will be chosen in elimination contests for each sport in both East and West Germany. The sports associations of the two parts of Germany will get together soon to negotiate dates and sites.

The German matter opened the IOC's two-day meeting. The executive board will discuss current Olympic matters like the state of preparations for the 1964 games. The IOC full congress will be held later this year in Nairobi, Kenya. The site for the 1968 games will be chosen there.

Peifley had three personals chalked against him at halftime while Reese had one.

E-Burg Swim Team Sunk By Emmaus

EMMAUS—The Cavalier men of East Stroudsburg High School were sunk by a strong Emmaus team here last night, 67-19, as only the 200-yard freestyle relay team of Coach Jack Kist was able to grab a first-place finish in the meet.

East Stroudsburg's Doug Millard, Carl Stabenow, Les Allen and Gene Mutschler swam the distance in 1:55.9 to claim their only first-place finish of the evening in the final event of the meet.

In only two other events — Ross Gordon in the 100-yard freestyle, and Wilkens in the 100-yard breaststroke—did the Cavalier swimmers finish second.

Chuck Spencer, the stellar swimmer on the Cavalier team, was unable to participate in the meet due to an attack of the virus.

The defeat was the seventh of the season for East Stroudsburg which has gained only a tie in their eight meets so far.

200 medley relay—Emmaus (Machos, Brimlow, Lutz, Herb, Time 2:23.8).

combined to knot the count at 55-53 at 6:28.

Bloomsburg's Fran Curran and Jim McKinley then went on another short scoring burst to give the Huskies a 61-55 advantage which they never relinquished.

Reese hit on consecutive deuces —including a brilliant steal and a full-length court drive for a layup —to pull the Warriors to within a 61-59 deficit but that was as close as they could manage before Bloomsburg pulled away to put the game on ice.

Share Honors
Peifley and Murphy shared scoring honors for the Warriors with 18 points apiece while Reese clipped in with 11.

Curran set the scoring pace for the winners with 19 points while Bob Herzog had 15, Ed Beck 12, and McKinley 10.

The defeat for the Warriors was their eighth against five wins and put them at a 3-6 conference mark. Bloomsburg notched its 11th triumph of the season against only two setbacks and gave them a 7-2 conference record as they continue to push undefeated Mansfield for top honors in the eastern section.

Gymnastics Meet At Penn State Sellout

UNIVERSITY PARK — Sell-out crowds for a gymnastics meet are unheard of at most colleges and universities, but a standing-room-only gathering of more than 6,000 is expected to pack Penn State's Recreation Building Saturday night when the unbeaten Nittany Lions face once-beaten Army.

"Gymnastics may be an off-beat sport to most people," says Lion coach Gene Wettstone, "but Penn State's find it colorful, exciting — and unbelievably challenging."

Saturday's meet not only will go a long way toward deciding Eastern title honors but also will demonstrate how a knowing audience reacts when the sport is presented on the grand scale.

Owens Copyright
Wettstone, two-time Olympic coach and molder of Penn State's perennial title contenders, owns the copyright when it comes to promoting gymnastics and he plans to make Saturday's meet one of his gaudiest performances. It'll be complete with organ and piano concerts before the meet, charming coeds to flash performers' scores, and a Chinese gong to signal the start of events.

The net result, of course, will be a gymnastics meet which will keep the crowd "oohing" and "aahing" from start to finish, applauding madly when the performance — by Lion or Cadet — is outstanding, and chiding the officials when it considers the scoring unfair to either competitor.

Intelligent Audiences
"It's one of the most intelligent audiences I've ever known," says Wettstone. Officials and opposing coaches and performers look forward to an assignment at Penn State because they know the event will do credit to the sport."

To Wettstone, gymnastics extravaganzas are old hat. For years, he has master-minded championships, Olympic try-outs, and nationwide tours by European teams. At Penn State, he whetted the public's interest in his first years by staging aerial circuses annually and slowing transferring this enthusiasm to his own gymnastics teams.

"A meet," says Wettstone, "is more than competition. It's showmanship at its finest. Where other

Lopat Looks To Rookies For Kansas City Boost

By ED LOPAT
Kansas City Athletics
HILLSDALE, N. J. (AP) — Our biggest handicap last year was the fact that half the club was comprised of rookies, with seven of them on the pitching staff alone.

Add to this the fact that our right-handed hitting attack was nothing to speak of, plus the great number of injuries to our key players, and it is not difficult to understand why we finished as low as we did last year.

But for the unusual number of injuries, I believe we could have won six to eight more games. We were rarely able to field our best unit. The most damaging loss was the injury that kept Dick Howser, our fine shortstop, out for the entire second half of the season.

Better Showing
We feel that with a complete season under their belts, the rookies should make a better showing in 1963. At the start of last season, we had only one pitcher of major league status.

That was Jerry Walker. When the season ended we had six pitchers who, through trial, error and experience absorbed some knowledge and savvy, and most of all the mental reaction that they could pitch in the big leagues. This confidence, plus their natural ability, is bound to enable them to gain more and more momentum this season.

Unless I am badly mistaken, we now have seven young pitchers to start with and three spots open. The seven are Ed Rakow, who had a 14-16 record in his first year as a starter; Dave Wickenscham, 10-3 despite being out half a season because of an injury; Diego Segui, 8-5; Dan Pfister, Walker, Orlando Pena and Ted Bowfield.

Infield Is Backbone
The infield is the backbone of the club, and I can truthfully say it doesn't have to take a back seat to any infield in the majors, offensively or defensively. I look for Howser to repeat his fine 1961 season. He is an exciting player who can do a lot of things. Ed Charles at third has to do as well as he did last year. And in Norm Siebern and Jerry Lumpe, we have the best first and second basemen in the league. Wayne Causey is our utility man at present.

The outfield could be a mad scramble. Gino Cimoli in right has to be relieved from time to time but still has good all-around ability. Bobby Del Greco and Joe Tartabull are our centerfielders.

New Outfielders
We have three new outfielders in John Wojcik, who is young and strong and could shove somebody out of a job; Ben Harrelson, a 20-year-old who broke the Eastern League record with 38 home runs and 137 runs batted in at Binghamton; and Bill Kern, who hit .315 at Portland last year. He hit 27 home runs and had 97 RBI.

If these fellows make the club, they will strengthen our bench and add much needed speed.

Haywood Sullivan and Joe Azucue will do most of the catching.

Prospects Bright
"Prospects for the 1963 Preakness appear exceedingly bright," said Pondfield as he appraised potential candidates for the classic.

"The strength of the three-year-old division is pretty well distributed between East and West this year, with both areas having legitimate claims to the potential three-year-old champion."

"Here in the East," Pondfield observed, "we have such stand-out prospects as Never Bend, Crewman, Rocky Link, Ahoy, Delta Judge, Right Proud and Insurance, among others, but the West seems to have remarkable strength in the likes of Candy Spots, Space Skates, Win-Em-All, Three Links, Kingmoor, Slipped Disc and Tourlourou."

Close To Swaps?
Some astute Western observers have gone so far as to suggest that Candy Spots, conqueror of Never Bend while compiling an unbeaten season as a two-year-old, might approach the class of the immortal Swaps.

Not since 1959, when Halina Braunstein's Royal Orbit won the Preakness, has a California development won the middle jewel of the Triple Crown. But chances are good that this delicacy will be rectified on May 18.

Nominations To The $150,000 Preakness at $100 each will close at midnight Friday, Feb. 15.

Cincy Rolls Toward Title

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The unbeaten Cincinnati Bearcats are getting ever so closer to their national championship.

Named No. 1 in The Associated Press poll for the 10th straight week Tuesday, Coach Ed Juckers defensive specialists shattered any idea that they might be growing stale by trouncing Drake 71-60.

The victory Monday night over a team that had carried the champs into overtime five days earlier was the 18th in a row for the Bearcats this season and the 36th straight without defeat over a 2-year span.

Fingers Crossed
Although holding a strong edge over second place Loyola of Chicago, also undefeated in 20 games Cincinnati's Coach Jucker was keeping his fingers crossed.

"We've still got games left with Bradley, Wichita, North Texas State, Tulsa and St. Louis," Jucker said. "In this league (Missouri Valley Conference) anybody can beat you."

The Bearcats have six games left on the regular schedule. After playing host to Bradley Saturday, they take on Wichita, North Texas State, Tulsa, Xavier of Ohio and St. Louis in that order.

Then they plunge into the NCAA tournament, where they may clash with high-scoring Loyola. The Chicago team also has six games left, with Wichita March 2 apparently the toughest.

Near - Unanimous
Cincinnati received 42 of the 44 first place votes from a special panel of sports writers and broadcasters in The Associated Press poll and amassed 430 points on the basis of ten for a first place vote, nine for second, etc.

Loyola continued to hold off Duke with 373 points compared with 303 for the Blue Devils from Durham while Illinois, Arizona State and Georgia Tech clung to their 4-5-6 positions, leaving the top six teams stationary.

Stanford dropped from seventh to tenth after losing to Washington 49-48, yielding its place to Colorado, which climbed a notch. Mississippi State and Wichita also moved up to No. 8 and No. 9, respectively.

PIMLICO, Md. — The 87th running of the $150,000-added Preakness Stakes will be contested at Pimlico on Saturday, May 18, it was announced yesterday by Louis Pondfield, vice president and executive director of the Maryland Jockey Club.

The richest added-money race in the world, the Preakness is the middle jewel of the Triple Crown for three-year-olds. The classic will be the highlight of Pimlico's 12-day spring meeting, May 4-May 18.

Last year Bradywine Stable's Greek Money earned $135,800 in winning the Preakness. Mrs. Katherine Price's Carry Back took home $128,200 in winning the 1961 Preakness, and has since become the fourth horse in history to win one million dollars in purses.

Frigid weather fails to cool want ad response!

RALPH VECCHIO, 135 Elizabeth St., East Stroudsburg, Pa. 18042. A good time to run his want ad for gas heaters. The temperature was hovering around zero! Mr. Vecchio's ad ran 3 days and cost $1.55. He reported four gas heaters were sold in that time. Further proof that want ad results are good in any weather!
